HUMAN TRAFFICKING = MODERN DAY SLAVERY

Human trafficking is one of the most important human rights issues of our century. It is happening throughout the world, in rural areas and cities in the U.S. and it is happening here in Nebraska. Our FBI and other law enforcement agencies, community coalitions and many individuals are working to combat it; however, it takes all of us, working together to stop the escalation of this evil. Sister Margaret Nacke, CSJ Ed.D. is a Sister of St Joseph of Concordia, Kansas who founded U.S. Catholic Sisters Against Human Trafficking, a faith-based national network that offers education, supports access to survivor services, and advocates to wipe out this modern-day slavery. Margaret has worked to combat human trafficking for the past ten years by educating the public about various aspects of the way people are bought, sold, and discarded as human beings. She will be coming to our new parish hall in Crete this Fall—date to be announced—to speak and invite others to become part of this effort. Until then, pray for all involved.
